ONCE YOUR CHILD CAN SAY "HELP," TEACH HIM HOW TO GET IT.

Dialing "O" for the operator in an emergency is so simple even a child can do it.

But you'd be surprised how many children don't know how—only because they haven't been taught.

That's why it's important to teach your children this emergency procedure as soon as they can understand it.

Dialing "O" is fast because there's only one digit to dial.

Dialing "O" is easy because it can be used for any emergency situation.

And dialing "O" alerts an operator who's specially trained to handle an emergency. That's particularly important if a younger child becomes confused or panics.

Older children can be taught to find the emergency service number in the telephone directory.

And, of course, make sure all your children know that phones aren't toys and shouldn't be played with.

Any child can get involved in an emergency.

What's important is that they know how to get out of it.

Milk production down

In recent weeks working with county diarymen on Dairy Herd Improvement programs we find that all herds have more genetic ability to milk than is being produced. This suggests the need for looking at the feeding program, mastitis prevention and general cow care.

* * *

This past fall 43% of all calves sold through the special feeder sales were crossbred. In spite of the growing use of crossbreeding, an awful lot of breeders do not have a program laid out to be followed.

There are at least five ways to develop a crossbreeding program:

1. Two way or two breed cross.
2. Three way or three breed terminal cross.
3. Two breed criss-cross or back cross.
4. Three breed rotational system.
5. Combination of the two breed criss-cross and three breed terminal system.

Regardless of herd size the commercial breeder is losing dollars if he has not established a definite program. Publication 781 may be useful in designing a program for your herd.

* * *

There are several diseases that cow herds need to be vaccinated against that can best be done while the cows are open. Again, develop a herd health program and discipline yourself to live with it. Most herds need to be vaccinated annually for IBR, P13, 5 strains of Lepto and BVD. I understand that some pharmaceutical companies are making a combination vaccine that contains all these in one shot. Talk with your vet about herd health plans.

Don't forget there is more "Bangs" in Virginia today than there was 5 years ago. Be sure those heifer calves are vaccinated with strain 19 for Brucellosis.

There's a great deal of concern as farmers begin preparing for the planting season. This is a year when corn futures are $3.00, soybeans $7.00, but interest rates are up 33%, fuel up 75%, higher minimum wage, fertilizer up 25% and will probably rise higher as the season progresses and even seed is up about $3 a unit.

There are some positive things to consider:

1. Develop a fuel conservation plan–every farm will be different.
2. Use soil tests–the new computerized soil test may indicate a range-for example, if the recommendation is for 75 to 95 pounds of nitrogen–use the lower rate for this season. If the phosphorus test is high–don't use any P_2O_5 this year.

3. Watch large investments if credit is needed.
4. Establish clover in pasture and hay fields. This will eliminate the cost of nitrogen.
5. Don't force marginal land into corn or soybeans.
